

A BRUTAL PRIZE FIGHT

Enlists the Plaudits of the Boston Blue Bloods.

The Crib Club Opens its Winter Season with Three Performances—Bloody Work Between Le Blanche and Kelleher.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 3.—The Crib Club opened its winter season last night with three hard fought fights, one of which was the most brutal that has taken place in Boston for years. Billy Mahoney was master of ceremonies and Edward A. Mosley, a wealthy lumber dealer, was time-keeper. Jimmy Carol, of Boston, and J. H. O'Neil, of Providence, and Paddy Duffy and Tug Collins, local fighters, fought drawn battles. George LeBlanche, "The Marine," and Denny Kelleher, who stood up before Sullivan, were the principal fighters.

In the first round lively and hard glove-fight prevailed.

In the second, Kelleher got in three heavy blows on his opponent's ribs, and then swung his right onto "The Marine's" optic, putting it in mourning. He then brought a stream of blood from the damaged eye. I fought "The Marine" to the ropes. The latter swung his left, but missing, fell to the floor just as time was called.

When time for the third round was called both men were "groggy" and sparred for a while. Kelleher got in a blow that sent "The Marine" to the floor. When time was called he arose and rushed at Kelleher and gave him a right hander in the stomach turning the tables in his favor. The fighting became desperate and continued so until time was called.

Both men were weak when they came up for the fourth round, but Le Blanche had gained his second wind. They went at each other like infuriated bulls, and when two minutes and forty-six seconds had passed, they got to close quarters. "The Marine" then landed a vicious uppercut which knocked Kelleher senseless to the floor. Patsy Sheppard and Dr. Bryant went to his rescue and with difficulty brought him to.

The enthusiasm throughout was intense and the blue blood of Boston went home highly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

TAKES A TUMBLE.

Deacon Richard Smith Falls and Breaks an Arm.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 3.—Richard Smith, of the Commercial Gazette, fell down on the St. Nicholas steps Thursday and broke his arm between the elbow and wrist. He was removed to his home and the injury pronounced painful though not serious. Strangers to say his own paper was "scorped" by the fall. Smith is the lynx-eyed Enquirer was also "let." The Deacon has had his office in the St. Nicholas for a month past, as his quarters at the Commercial Gazette building were being repaired. At 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon his son-in-law called to drive him out to his home in Clifton. Mr. Smith tripped on the carpet at the head of the stairs and came down head foremost. He picked himself up without saying a word, and walked over to the Commercial Gazette office. He spoke to Mr. Kidd concerning some business matters and then remarked:

"I had a terrible fall just now, and my arm hurts me very much."

Mr. Kidd suggested that it might have been broken, but the Deacon laughed at the idea. However, the pain evidently increased, and on his way home he stopped at Dr. Conners, who found it was broken, as Mr. Kidd had suggested.

A BLACKSMITH'S NERVE.

He Twists a Rope About His Neck and Holds it Till He Dies.

CORONADO, N. Y., Nov. 3.—William Hannis, a blacksmith, living at Lenville, five miles east of here, hanged himself to-day. He placed a dipping noose knot around his neck, drew it tight as possible, then wound the rope three times around his neck, held it with his hand, laid down on the bed and died. He was found lying on the bed by one who happened to go in on an errand. Hannis' wife died last summer and he has been depressed ever since. He attended a local meeting here Friday night and told a fellow Democrat that he would not be here to vote on Tuesday. He has two grown up sons and was fifty-two years old. No cause can be assigned except the brooding over the loss of his wife.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY.

Somebody Who Suddenly Found Himself in Disabille.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Captain Williams of the Twenty-ninth precinct, is disposed to laugh over the somewhat startling discovery in the vicinity of Thirtieth street and Fifth avenue early to-day. An officer on the post there picked up a very fashionable brown beaver overcoat, a black vest, black dress-coat, all lined with satin, a silk hat, a pair of silk socks, a gold hunting-case watch on a chain, worth $45, a pair of linen cuffs with the monogram "A. B." and a silk umbrella. They are now at the Thirtieth-street Station House. Captain Williams says his theory is that a drunken gentleman dropped in the street and afterward found refuge in the rear of friends.

Killed with a Base Ball Bat.

TALENT, Ill., Nov. 3.—Leroy Hunter, a citizen of Keokuk, Iowa, was killed last evening during a Republican rally. It is said that Hunter, in carrying his torch, touched Eugene Darnier, of this place, who struck at Hunter. Some angry words passed and they separated. Afterward Darnier procured a base ball bat and struck Hunter a powerful blow upon the chin. The blow broke Hunter's neck. Several men saw the deed committed. Darnier was arrested and seceded to avoid violence, which was strongly talked of.

A Life for Love.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 3.—At Paris, the county seat of Lamar County, fully 1,300 persons gathered round the jail yesterday to witness the hanging of Bill Bass, a negro, for criminal assault upon Lou Williams, a paralytic, who lived on the Poor Farm. Bass mounted the gallows with a howling tread, but broke down completely. At 4:30 the trap fell and his neck was broken.

Fire—One Man Killed.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—The Gardes lead works, near the Allegheny City limits, was entirely destroyed by fire this morning. A man named Campbell was killed by a falling wall. The loss will reach $25,000.
